DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

1. Claims 1-4 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Feeney (U. S. Patent Number 6,144,841) in vie of Wang et al. (U.S. Patent Number 6,178,164).

Regarding claims 1-4, Feeney discloses all the claimed invention as set fourth in the instant application, further Feeney discloses nethod and system for managing forward link power control with a code-division multiple access mobile telephone communication network. Additionally, Feeney discloses detecting a quality of a signal received at a base station, and instructing the base station to improve the signal quality and instructing the wireless device to decrease a power gain (which read on column 1 lines 45-60). However Feeney fails to specifically disclose the use of a pilot channel.

In the same field of endeavor, Wang et al. discloses a method and apparatus for performing idle handoff in a multiple access communication system. Wang et al. further discloses the use of a pilot channel as disclosed in column 1 line 27-33.

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill at the time the invention was made to modify Fenney by specifically providing for a pilot channel as taught by Wang et al. for the purpose of varing the signal.

Art Unit: 2685

2. Claims 5-10 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Feeney (U. S. Patent Number 6,144,841) in view of Wang et al. (U.S. Patent Number 6,178,164) and further in view of Park et al. (U. S. Patent Number 5,912,884).

Regarding claims 5,6, Feeney in view of Wang et al. discloses everything claimed, as applied above (see claim 1)however, Fenney in view of Wang et al. fails to specifically discloses a second processor coupled to the first processor.

In the same field of endeavor, Park et al. discloses a overload cell control method in cdma mobile system. Park et al. further discloses the use of a second processor coupled to the first processor as disclosed in column 2 lines 52-60.

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill at the time the invention was made to modify Fenney in view of Wang et al. by specifically providing a second processor coupled to the first processor as taught by Park et al. for the purpose of increasing the performance and capacity of the base station.

Regarding claims 7-9, Feeney in view of Wang et al. discloses everything claimed, as applied above (see claim 1) additionnaly, Fenney discloses a processor, a storage medium, as exhibited in figure 1, Additionally, Feeney discloses detecting a quality of a signal received at a base station, and instructing the base station to improve the signal quality and instructing the wireless device to decrease a power gain (which read on column 1 lines 45-60). However Feeney fails to specifically disclose the use of a pilot channel.

Art Unit: 2685

In the same field of endeavor, Wang et al. discloses a method and apparatus for performing idle handoff in a multiple access communication system. Wang et al. further discloses the use of a pilot channel as disclosed in column 1 line 27-33.

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill at the time the invention was made to modify Fenney by specifically providing for a pilot channel as taught by Wang et al. for the purpose of varying the signal. adequately meet the limitation.

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill at the time the invention was made to modify Kanterakis et al. by specifically providing for pilot channel as taught by Kanterakis et al. for the purpose of varying the signal.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-10 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
